Youtube link: https://youtu.be/LYSET_WsncU
Github Repo: https://github.com/Drogshell/SIT305.git

I decided to update the design implementation by removing the submit button as it felt very clunky and unnecessary. I instead made the buttons clickable and directly related to an answer; this also eliminated a bunch of needless error handling code. Like, what happens if a user presses two buttons at once before pressing submit? The only error handling I had to implement was the guard against not submitting a name . Which I handle using a snackbar.